Every month, COMPUTER reaches an international readership of over 25,000 computer scientists and engineers. These computer systems builders tell us that, because of COMPUTER's unique editorial mini-conference approach, they regard each issue as a lasting reference.

If you market minis, micros, mainframes or memories—components, peripherals or software—and you want to reach your prospects again... and again... and again, join our experts and start talking their language. (In COMPUTER, you can still do it for under $1000 a page.)

Call us. We'll talk COMPUTER with you.
