Basic Four Corporation doesn’t just offer computers, we provide solutions. Our market is Small Business, ranging from retail trade to manufacturing to real estate, and our purpose is to match an entire computer system to the individual needs of a particular type and size of customer.

What is to our customers a perplexing problem, is to us a stimulating new challenge to our expertise and imagination...and to aggressive EDP pros, a valuable opportunity to expand their horizons in a fast-growing field.

The demand for Basic Four’s problem-solving proficiency has spurred an impressive growth pattern, not only in our business, but in professional opportunities. Never before has the need been so great as today for talented computer people whose skills and ambitions are geared to meet such challenge...head on.

It could mean a lot to our customers, to us...and to your career future. Write today.

JERRY FARROW