CALLS FOR ARTICLES FOR IEEE CS PUBLICATIONS

IT Professional seeks papers for a January/February 2011 issue focusing on green IT.

Green IT is, and will continue to be, a hot topic due to increasing awareness of the harmful effects of green gas emissions, new stringent environmental legislation, rising concern about electronic waste disposal practices that damage the environment, and corporate-image concerns that are pushing businesses and individuals to adopt green practices.

Articles are due by 1 July. Visit www.computer.org/portal/web/computingnow/iccfp1 to view the complete call for papers.

IEEE Internet Computing seeks papers for a May/June 2011 issue focusing on security and privacy in social networks.

Current trends in social networking indirectly require users to become system and policy administrators to protect their content in this social setting. This is further complicated by the rapid growth of social networks and the continuous adoption of new services on these networks. Moreover, using personal information in social networks raises entirely new privacy concerns and requires new insights into security problems.

Articles are due by 1 September. Visit www.computer.org/portal/web/computingnow/iccfp3 to view the complete call for papers.

COMPSAC 2010
Smart software solutions can improve efficiency, reliability, and quality in diverse areas, while simultaneously reducing costs. Numerous computing disciplines can collectively contribute to these smart solutions. COMPSAC 2010, the 34th IEEE Computer Software and Applications Conference, continues to feature research and industrial practice papers focusing on software and middleware development for distributed platforms, services computing, cloud computing, and mobile systems.
