Acknowledgments

John Hennessy and Mark Horowitz provided the processor benchmarks and valuable insights about them. Dick Sites provided the explanation as to why the instruction simulator ran slowly on a VS-II. John Vlissides wrote the first version of the graphics benchmarks for the IRIS.

The companies involved were very helpful in getting access to systems or configurations that we did not have at Stanford. Special thanks to the following people who helped with the actual benchmark runs: Evan Adams, Susan Ellis, Jerry Evans, Ron Kita, Dale Scott, and Steve Spanier. The referees’ comments were helpful in improving the article’s clarity.

References