The society offers two software developer certification. Technical Committees: standards used throughout the world. Standards Working Groups: More than 150 groups produce IEEE technology, and applications. The society publishes 13 magazines, 19 transactions, technology, and applications. covers all aspects of computer science, computer engineering, computing science accreditation. The society holds about 200 conferences Conferences/Education: engineering conferences and publications. Conference Publishing Conference Proceedings & Books: Conference Publishing Services publishes more than 275 titles every year. Standards Working Groups: More than 150 groups produce IEEE standards used throughout the world. Technical Committees: TCs provide professional interaction in more than 30 technical areas and directly influence computer engineering conferences and publications. Conferences/Education: The society holds about 200 conferences each year and sponsors many educational activities, including computing science accreditation. Certifications: The society offers two software developer credentials. For more information, visit www.computer.org/ certification.