The future of component-based development

Presenter: Bertrand Meyer
Interactive Software Engineering

Abstract

An analysis of current developments in the field of component-based software development, the evolution of the major supporting technologies, and possible solutions to the main challenges in this area.